Report of Curator, April 29th, 1867.

GENTLEMEN—I have the honour to submit to you my eleventh annual report. The Museums under my charge are in as forward a condition as the means at my disposal will allow of. The shelves, added two years' ago, are being gradually filled, and present even now a very good appearance. The rules lately adopted by the Council will tend greatly to the preservation of the most delicate of the specimens, but will require increased exertions on the part of the Curator to have the School Museum put in such order as to give every facility to the Professors. The number of visitors—1385—under the present restrictions as to admission has been few, several distinguished names, however, are upon the list.

105 additions have been made to the collection :

Anatomical specimens in spirit of wine	...	41
Pathological preparations in spirit of wine	...	42
Skeletons	... ..	7
Anatomical casts	... ..	7
Pathological casts	... ..	8
		<hr/> 105

200 old specimens have been repaired and reup in fresh spirit of wine.

Of the donations to the Museum those of Dr. Edward Percival Wright deserve special notice—26 specimens of diseases of the eye by Baden and 6 casts of the brain in important animals having been presented by him. Donations also have been received from Drs. Adams, Barry, J. Benson, Banon, Mr. Brennan, Mr. Croly; Drs. Darby, Geoghegan, Hargrave, J. Stannus Hughes, Hewitt, Jacob, Leech, M'Alister, Macnamara, M'Clin-tock, Mapother, Morgan, Sawyer, Wharton.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN BARKER, M.D.

Curator.

Museum.

At a meeting of Council, held on March 7th, the following letter from the Curator was read, viz :—

Royal College of Surgeons,
March 4th, 1867.

GENTLEMEN,

I beg leave at this time to bring before you some of what I consider to be the present requirements of the Museum, in order that I may be enabled to embody your wishes on the subject in my annual report to the Council. I have long ago, in my quarterly reports to the Committee, drawn their attention to the wear and tear of the collection, and to the breakage of glass cases and jars, and the frequent enquiry of the Professors of the College and others for preparations which have been broken and worn out in service, has induced me to lay this matter again before you. Upwards of 800 additions to the Museum have been made by my own hands, and yet the Museum does not display a corresponding advance.

The causes of this state of things are, in my opinion, as follows :—

1st—Want of adequate protection to the specimens in the Museum.

2nd—Want of due heating and ventilation.

3rd—Want of space in the Pathological Museum.

4th—The impossibility of preventing injury to valuable and delicate specimens when removed from the shelves.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN BARKER.

When it was resolved—

“ The Museum Committee be requested to make rules and regulations for the due maintenance of the preparations, to be submitted to the Council at its next meeting.”

At a meeting of Council, held on March 21st, the following Report from the Museum Committee was read, which was agreed to, and the Museum Committee were requested to proceed with their suggestions.

At a meeting of Council, held on April 6th, the Museum Committee brought up the following Report, viz. :—

RULES RELATIVE TO THE REMOVAL OF SPECIMENS FROM THE MUSEUM.

I.—That all the school preparations be moved down to the School Museum.

II.—That as many duplicate specimens as can be spared from the Anatomical Museum be also placed in the School Museum.

III.—That such specimens (presented to the College by the present Professors) as they may require, be also placed in the School Museum.

IV.—That all specimens in the Anatomical and Pathological Collections be at the disposal of the Professors for use at Lectures, with the following exceptions :—

1st.—That no wax model or wax cast be removed from the shelves.

2nd.—That no mercurial preparations be removed.

3rd.—That no preparation larger than 2 feet long by 1 foot broad be removed from their shelves.

4th.—That no jar of an equal or greater capacity than one gallon be disturbed.

5th.—That no oval jar be taken from the shelves.

6th.—That 300 specimens in addition be marked in the Museum, by the authority of the Committee, which are not to be removed from the shelves.

7th.—That a selection of such new preparations as may from time to time be added to the Museum be marked by the authority of the Committee, and that these be not removed from their shelves.

8th.—That all preparations used at lecture be replaced on or before each Saturday.

9th.—That no specimens in the Museum, marked by the authority of the Committee, be removed from their shelves without a written order from the President or Council.

When it was resolved—

“That the Report of the Museum Committee just read be adopted, entered on the minutes, and printed on cards, to be placed in conspicuous places in the Museum, as soon as the Museum Committee shall have marked off the specimens which are not to be removed from the shelves of the Museum.”

It is of great importance that an institution like yours should be presided over by so distinguished a body of men, who, by their scientific researches, as well as by their example and practical skill, must exercise a most beneficial influence over the medical profession.

I wish, at all times, to enlist your efforts in any undertaking in which your professional knowledge may render your assistance the more especially valuable ; and I shall always be ready to give my best attention to any suggestion you may be disposed to offer me, either on behalf of your own profession, or in the interest of the whole community.

Having been elected a Fellow of the College of Physicians, I beg (in compliance with their regulations) to send in my resignation of the Fellowship of the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland.

I am, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,

HENRY H. HEAD.

To the President and Council of the
Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland.

Dr. Jacob's resignation of the Professorship of Anatomy and Physiology in the School of the College.

At a meeting of Council, held on January 15th, the following letter was read, viz :—

Croydon,
15th January, 1867.

GENTLEMEN,

Being convinced that I cannot with confidence rely on my power to deliver the Lectures on Anatomy and Physiology next Session in the College School, I think it will be more for the good of the College and the benefit of the pupils, that I should resign my Professorship now, which I hereby do accordingly, after fifty years' service as an anatomical teacher, forty of them as the Professor of Anatomy and Physiology in your College. You will, I am sure, agree with me that the period has arrived for the performance of this act.

I have the honour to be,
Your very obedient servant,

A. JACOB.

To the President and Council of the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland.

Proposed by Dr. Hargrave, seconded by Dr. Adams, and unanimously resolved—

“That we, the Council, having received a letter from Dr. Jacob, resigning the Professorship of Anatomy and Physiology, which he held for so many years with so much honour to himself, credit to the College, and educational advantages to the numerous students who have pursued their studies in the College School, it is with feelings of deep regret we accept it.”

At a meeting of Council, held on March 7th, the following letter was read, viz. :—

March 5th, 1867.

Mr. President and Gentlemen,—

Being assured of the benefit which I derive from complete physical and mental relaxation at my present place of residence, I have determined, on due consideration, to relieve myself permanently of active professional labour.

Feeling, under these circumstances, that I ought not further occupy the position in the administration of the College with which I have been so long honoured, I beg to lay before you my resignation of the office of Councillor.

It may be believed that I have decided on this course with much anxiety for the maintenance of those interests which I have so long endeavoured to sustain, and with much regret at a separation from my colleagues, who have so friendly and cordially acted with me in upholding those principles which I now leave with confidence in their hands.

In retiring from personal connexion with the Council of the College, I cannot divest myself of the interest which I have taken in its affairs, and it will afford me much satisfaction if, by any means of communication, I can make available such information as my long official relation to the College has enabled me to acquire.

I have the honour to be,
Your grateful and sincere friend and Fellow,
A. JACOB.

When it was resolved—

“That Dr. Jacob's resignation as a Member of Council be accepted, and that his letter be placed on the minutes.”

The following resolution was then handed to the President, viz. :—

“We, the undersigned Fellows of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, hereby request of you to summons, at your earliest convenience, a meeting of the Fellows of this College, to elect a Member of Council, in room of Dr. Jacob, resigned.

RAWDON MACNAMARA
J. H. WHARTON
B. M'DOWEL
H. LABATT
WILLIAM JAMESON
WILLIAM A. ELLIOTT.

To the President and Secretary of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland.”

In pursuance of the above requisition, it was ordered, that a notice be sent to the Fellows of the College for the election of a Member of Council, in room of Dr. Jacob, resigned, to take place on Friday, the 15th March.

The election having been held as above, Dr. Archibald H. Jacob was duly elected a Member of Council, in room of Dr. Jacob, resigned.

Testimonial to Dr. Arthur Jacob.

At a meeting of Council, held on February 21st, it was resolved—

“That it be referred to the Finance Committee, and report to the Council as to the best means of expressing their sense of the benefits conferred on the College and the School by the long, eminent, and successful services of Dr. Jacob.”

In accordance with the foregoing resolution, the Finance Committee brought up the following report on March 7th :—

Your Committee, anxious to give effect to the wishes of the Council, recommend an address be presented to Dr. Jacob, to express their regret that the state of his health has compelled him to resign the chair of Anatomy and Physiology, and his seat on the Council, which he has so long filled with credit to himself and the College.

That a portrait of Dr. Jacob be placed in the Board-room of the College.

That a piece of plate, not less value than one hundred guineas, be presented to Dr. Jacob as an additional testimony of respect and gratitude for his services.

The report having been read and unanimously agreed to, it was proposed by Dr. Colles, seconded by Dr. Hargrave, and resolved—

“That the Finance Committee be empowered to carry the resolutions in the report into effect, and to give such publicity to the same as they may think fit, subject to the approval of Council.”

At the same meeting it was also resolved—

“That Mr. Catterson Smith be engaged to paint a three-quarter portrait of Dr. Jacob for the College.”

At the same meeting the following address, about to be presented to Dr. Jacob, was read, agreed to, and ordered to be engrossed and signed by the President, Vice-President, and the Members of Council :—

SIR,

We, the President, Vice-President, and Members of Council of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, beg leave to express to you our sincere regret at the loss we have experienced by being deprived of your valuable services in the conduct of the business of the College, and in the teaching in the School attached thereto.

We are fully sensible of the great amount of time, talent, and labour you have so long and so disinterestedly devoted to advancing the best interests of the College, to maintaining its privileges, and to enlarging its sphere of usefulness.

We also gratefully acknowledge that your exertions in teaching the important subjects of Anatomy and Physiology, during a period of more than forty years, have materially conduced to the success of our School, whilst your contributions to Science have made your name illustrious amongst those who have enriched our art, whereby you have enhanced the fame of Irish Surgery.

We earnestly hope that your life may long be spared to enjoy the well-merited repose which voluntarily you have sought, and are anxious that you should bear with you the satisfaction of knowing, that the College is deeply grateful to you for your earnest, long-continued, and successful labours in its behalf.

TO THE PRESIDENT, VICE-PRESIDENT, AND MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF SURGEONS IN IRELAND.

Gentlemen—

I have had the pleasure of receiving your very kind expression of regret at the loss of my services in the conduct of the business of the College and the teaching in the School, as well as your expression of belief that my labours have been disinterestedly devoted to advancing the best interests of the College, to maintaining its privileges, and enlarging its sphere of usefulness.

If I have been successful in my endeavours to accomplish these objects it has been owing to my firm reliance on the judgment and independence of the Council, supported as it is by the Fellows at large, and therefore am I convinced that the College will continue to flourish as heretofore, notwithstanding the change to which these observations refer.

Allow me to add, that although I can no longer discharge the duty of Councilor, I shall at all times, as long as I live, be prepared to place my services at the disposal of the College, be their value what they may ; and so I remain your friend and colleague.

A. JACOB.

At a meeting of Council, held on 7th February, Dr. Mapother having resigned his seat on the Council, in consequence of becoming a candidate

To The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty.

MADAM,

As President of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, I most humbly beg your Majesty's gracious acceptance of the accompanying Volume.

It contains a brief account of the Inauguration of a marble Bust in memory of His late Royal Highness, the universally beloved, and deeply lamented, Prince Consort, placed by the Royal College of Surgeons in the Examination Hall of their College, which has thence been named "The Albert Hall."

The features of Him whom the Universal Nation loved and honored, have been perpetuated in numberless Monuments raised to his memory by a grateful and admiring people; but it may be interesting to Your Majesty to know, as it is our pride to record in the annals of our College, that the first act of homage of this kind paid by any public Body to the revered name of Albert, was the setting up of that Bust, the account of the inauguration of which it is now my high privilege, in the name of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, to offer for Your Majesty's most gracious acceptance.

I remain, with profound veneration,

Madam,

Your Majesty's most faithful Subject and dutiful Servant,

RICHARD G. BUTCHER,

President of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland.
